I've recently changed my engine to Laravel, so am taking my existing PHP code and transferring it to the new framework. In one of my views I return a variable and then I make use of it in a JQuery codeblock but I get the error "Undefined variable" because the variable has already been returned as a result of a previous operation. I guess the question is how do I use that returned variable in the JQuery code. I can't post images yet so I have broken up the code into more detailed chunks. Controller: `$user = Auth::user()->first();` View: `$userName = $user->firstname;` This line of code is where the error is coming from. I have tried returning `$user` and that is also the same error. `$tourHistory = TourHistory::where('userId', $user->id)->orderBy('time_asc', 'DESC')->get();` Code in view: `{{ $userName }}`
